Subject: Formal Objection to Wastewater Discharge at Cregg, Lahinch, Co. Clare

Dear Sir/Madam,

I wish to formally object to the proposed discharge of wastewater into the sea at Cregg, Lahinch.

Discharging wastewater into our coastal waters poses unacceptable risks to marine life, wildlife, fragile coastal habitats and water quality. Potential pollutants, harmful bacteria and excess nutrients can damage marine ecosystems, disrupt the natural balance of the sea and threaten the safety of people who swim, surf and enjoy these waters.

Lahinch's coastline is an invaluable natural asset, central to the local community, tourism and economy. It must not be put at risk by a wastewater discharge that could have lasting environmental and economic consequences.

I strongly oppose this proposal and demand that all viable alternatives be fully explored before any discharge is permitted. Independent environmental assessments, transparent water-quality data and clear evidence that marine habitats and public health will be protected must be provided.

The sea is not a dumping ground. Uisce Éireann has a responsibility to protect our marine environment, not place it at unnecessary risk.

I expect this objection to be formally recorded and a written response provided explaining how these serious concerns will be addressed.

Yours faithfully,
